Fifty years have passed since the arrival of animation onto the cultural scene in Slovakia. Rare attempts at animated films made previously were sporadic and did not lead to the formal acceptance of this art form. This happened only in 1965, and the emergence of animation is associated with Viktor Kubal, the most important figure of animated film in Slovakia.

In the upcoming decades it was Kubal who shaped the profile of animation, although it only took a few years for other outstanding creators to join him. The filmography of this prolific artist included numerous films also due to his active participation in the production of television bedtime stories. At that time state television became a major producer of children’s films and their demand accelerated the arrival of new filmmakers in the state owned Film Studio Koliba. TV bedtime stories offered many animators a chance to gain confidence and master the craft.

At the end of the 1970s puppet animation developed thanks to the pioneers who started from scratch, relying only on their own strength. Thus the stage of complete mastery of all previously available conventional techniques of film animation was reached in the domestic environment.

This provided an opportunity to establish cooperation with more advanced studios in the neighbouring countries. A number of films were produced with the Bulgarian studio Sofia. Remarkable ones were also made in co-production with the Studio of Puppet Film in Dresden, and with the Gruziafilm in Tbilisi. Under the auspices of ASIFA, international co-production projects with child animators were run and the first attempts at mastering techniques of animation by computer were made. Cooperation with various Czech artists culminated in co-production films. The 1980s, characterised by the release of two animated feature films both by Viktor Kubal, can be regarded as the peak of Slovak animation, documented in numerous awards at home and abroad.

As a consequence of political and economic changes in the early 1990s (the fall of communism), the state monopoly film institutions ceased to exist. New private companies and studios were formed slowly and many of them soon went out of business. Production for children at public television finished unexpectedly. Animation faced difficult market conditions. In the 1990s the production of film and television animation decreased almost to zero.

Fresh hope was miraculously born out of the hotbed of collapse. The Department of Animation was founded at the Academy of Performing Arts in Bratislava in 1993. The first graduates already showed extraordinary energies. It was particularly to their credit that the number of animation studios increased at the end of the 1990s with the ambition to follow modern art and animation trends. A new generation of young animators emerged, many of whom gained major awards on the domestic and international scene. They stood at the birth of the Homo Felix specialised journal dedicated to domestic and international animation. They contributed to teaching animation at several secondary schools, and initiated the establishment of domestic festivals and presentations.

Finally, public television avowed to its finest tradition of bedtime stories and opened itself to all those who think about child audience.

This was the beginning of healthy competition between animators, of mutual cooperation between animation studios in the Visegrad region, of openness towards Europe and the world. It sent out the message that animation, this beautiful art of enthusiasm and revival, is again becoming an important part of the cultural movement in Slovakia.
Thirty years after the fall of communism, the animated film industry in Slovakia is confidently growing and developing. The 1990s and 2000s were hit hard by commissioned work for public television being disrupted, and an absence of state subsidies for independent productions. In spite of these setbacks, animation has not only survived but thrived in Slovakia thanks to the creative potential of students breaking through in Cannes, Annecy, Stuttgart, Oberhausen, and even as nominees for the Student Academy Award. Exceptional figures among former students form the core of the contemporary animation scene – running studios, producing films and TV series, and directing films. With every new generation of students, new talents emerge who in turn become artists that succeed on the international festival scene. The quality and ambition of projects has reached a competitive international level. Television series are regularly broadcasted in prime-time, enjoying great popularity among children, and even being distributed overseas. Feature-length projects have been successfully funded internationally, and recognized at prestigious professional platforms and markets.

A national subsidy system for cinema has been operating in Slovakia since 2006. Support for the audiovisual industry fundamentally changed in 2010, when the Slovak Audiovisual Fund (AVF) entered into full operation and opened a separate sub-programme for animation. Public television – Radio and Television Slovakia (RTVS) – also continues to fund the production of numerous children’s animated series, and enters into regular feature film co-productions with independent producers. Systematic financial support for animation has helped several new production companies and studios to be established in recent years. The Slovak Association of Animated Film Producers (APAF) currently associates 12 companies and plays an important role in relation to the Slovak Audiovisual Fund, comments on its work, and supports animators’ interests. APAF co-organizes all CEE Animation activities, most notably the CEE Animation Workshop and CEE Animation Forum (formerly Visegrad Animation Forum), which operate with the co-financing of Creative Europe MEDIA sub-programs. Thanks to CEE Animation’s numerous international activities, opportunities for the co-production of animated films have grown significantly in recent years and today are a standard. Just as co-productions were typically part of how state film studios previously operated, now they’re once again essential for funding ambitious projects and securing international distribution. Co-productions are stimulated by personal contacts according to a network of producers under CEE Animation. APAF also closely cooperates with the International Animated Film Festival Fest Anča in Žilina, and the Academy of Performing Arts in Bratislava (VŠMU), by regularly organizing educational activities to foster the connection between animation students and the professional Slovak animated film industry.

Slovak animation has successfully established itself in cooperation with the Czech Republic, Hungary, Poland and Slovenia. In addition, co-productions with economically-stronger countries – mainly in Western Europe – are on the rise.

Several feature-length co-production films that have international potential and Slovak majority financial input are in production, with financial support secured from various co-producing countries, as well as Creative Europe MEDIA and Eurimages funding. Funds allocated to animation by the AVF have increased significantly in recent years. The 20% tax rebate available to local and international producers also makes Slovakia a strong partner for international co-productions, as well as service work for more commercial projects.

Several promising productions and young talents have a great chance of putting Slovak Animation on the world cinema map over the next five years. Studios specializing in specific techniques – 3D CGI, 2D animation, stop-motion – are gaining experience on ambitious projects, and could soon offer very competitive high-end servicing for international productions. The industry’s main challenge will be to withstand growing production demands, and most notably requests for a higher number of skilled animators.

The TV series Cheesy Slovakia is a comedy show based on characters, gags and visual humour. Its visual style is inspired by national folk art, mostly the ceramic art of majolica that uses a blue and white palette. The animation is 2D vector, modern, light and clear. DIRECTOR’S INTENTION

I held a kids’ workshop where I got to know a little boy who loved watching documentaries on TV. He made a short animation of a parasite-covered shark, which was very funny and playful. I realised the possibility to make an animation for children that is both entertaining and educational. I tell stories in the simplest way, while consulting with experts the accuracy of certain depictions.

THE HEADS

by GEJZA DEZORZ

The Heads follows the tradition of television puppet series. The episodes are micro-stories from the lives of personalities connected with the history of Slovakia. They offer viewers a full-fledged alternative to animated 3D stories. The series has an educational dimension but also includes humour.

The figure of Mr. Punch accompanies a viewer in the stories of individual episodes. He uses a time-tunnel to relocate from the “library of knowledge”. Mr. Punch always ends up in a different historical period to take the position of an associate or friend of the main character and experiences with him not only the facts but also lesser-known moments from its life and, at the end, he again returns by the time tunnel to the every-day reality a bit wiser and more experienced.

EPISODES

DIRECTOR’S INTENTION
Our driving force was a love of puppet animation and its unlimited expressive opportunities. As the story author and writer of some episodes, my vision was clear from the start: to shoot a series following the formal aspect of the classic 1980’s Czechoslovak TV puppet tales by using diverse technologies and animation techniques. Our series of stories are inspired by the long-history of Slovak puppet TV films for children, and draw on the staging principles of traditional marionette theatre to which I’ve dedicated myself for almost 15 years.

DIRECTOR’S INTENTION
Explaining etiquette (not only) to teenagers is not easy. Parents know best how often they have to remind their children of the rules of good manners, and of wearing not only what they want, but also what the social situation requires. Virtual communication has also weakened generation Y and Z’s social skills. Adolescents spend more and more time in virtual space, where they rarely encounter advice on respectful and decent social behaviour. The Smarts family stories explain such etiquette in a playful and funny way. In response to the “vlogging trend”, we created Charmer – a young vlogger character who approximates the topic to our target audience.

ABOUT THE PRODUCTION COMPANY

THE WEBSTERS

BY KATARÍNA KEREKESOVÁ

High above the human world, a web loomed from stories similar to ours holds an alternative world of small creatures with big hearts – The Websters.

In the sitcom The Websters you can see unexpected analogy between the world of spiders and human world. The members of the spider Websters family face conflicts and dilemmas just like members of any other family. But in our stories, they learn that in spite of such challenges, the family has the potential to remain the place of safety, love and acceptance.

DIRECTOR’S INTENTION
The series seeks to bring quality literary content with atypical and extraordinary visuals. We targeted themes of family and friendship in an unconventional manner. Many of us have irrational fears of spiders, despite their society and our own being rather similar. The most important aspect of which is the net or cobweb: home, cohesion between family members, and connection to the outside world and universe.

2D gag-based animated comedy series Vincent and the Sheep will provide quality family time while reflecting on generation gap between today’s children and their adult authorities.

Wouldn’t it be awesome if there was someone constantly improving your life? Well, Vincent The Wolf would strongly disagree. His purposely uneventful bachelor life is regularly invaded by his beloved neighbours – three adorable sheep with hearts as big as their hunger for adventure. Their ambitions to make Vincent’s life as fun as theirs is the only thing occupying their minds, but their attempts ultimately end up being disastrous. For Vincent, at least, as the sheep always have time of their lives.

DIRECTOR’S INTENTION

Its visual style is heavily influenced by American old-school cartoons – very stylized yet also cute and recognisable. It’s a slapstick comedy that highlights character design: shapes are simple and lines are easy to read (even for young children), while the background is detailed, colourful and conceals numerous Easter eggs.

My life is turbulent and it will be full of struggles. I will share my happiness but if I fall, I want to fall by myself.

Milan Rastislav Štefánik’s life reminds of an antic drama. A young, noble, romantic hero dies a tragic death veiled with secrets and conspiracy theories. My life is turbulent and it will be full of struggles. I will share my happiness but if I fall, I want to fall by myself. We have decided to approach Milan Rastislav Štefánik and his life in a new way. We want to tell a story about a man who is trying to fulfill his dreams despite the personal as well as historical obstacles. This is not a patriotic blockbuster but a historical drama, which takes places across the continents. It’s a hybrid film. Through the combination of different genres, we can tell the spectator not only what happened but also what could have happened and we can do so in an unusual and attractive way.

There is no such silliness, which couldn’t be made up by the man...

Once there was a sea... is short animated documentary about the Aral Sea. Most of the changes in climate and landscape in the area of the Aral Sea are the outcomes of one of the worst man-made eco-catastrophes in human history. The Aral Sea is dying. The idea of the film Once there was a sea... came to mind of director Joanna Kożuch during her train trips through the region of Middle Asia in 2008 and 2014. The film is inspired by the place on the borders of Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan and the stories and destinies of the people that she has met when I was exploring the disaster of Aral Sea.

OVERBOARD*

BY FILIP POŠIVAČ, BARBORA VALECKÁ

Short, silent animated film for children is playing with a biblical story about Ark in which Noah collected some selected animals to save them from certain perishing in the global flood. However, we add one tiny bonus: a pair of animals that Noah will surely not want to save.

At first glance, Chameleon and Kiwi are a strange pair: while the former draws attention with his changing colors, the balding and perpetually frightened Kiwi shies away from any attention at all. But when an approaching storm sweeps away the roof over their heads, there is no room for differences: they must help each other to get to the boat waiting on shore! The Ark is only for selected couples and Chameleon, with his gaping tongue, and cross-eyed Kiwi certainly aren’t one of them.

SLOVAK AUDIOVISUAL FUND

Slovak Audiovisual Fund (AVF) is a public institution for the support and sustainable development of audiovisual culture and industry in the Slovak Republic, within a context of international cooperation. It is the main source of financing of audiovisual projects in Slovakia. The annual budget of AVF is composed of a contribution from the state budget and contributions by public or private subjects from the audiovisual sector. In 2019 the overall budget of AVF amounts to 9 mil. €.

A special program of AVF is dedicated to animated films for cinematic release of all lengths, where a Slovak production company is the main producer. The maximum subsidy for one project is 30,000 € for development and 2 mil. € for production. There are two calls per year for production (February and September) and two calls per year for development (March and October).

For projects of animated series intended for television broadcast produced by a Slovak production company as main producer there is a special program of AVF dedicated solely to TV production, with a call once per year (May).

Fully developed co-production projects, where the Slovak production company is a minority co-producer are eligible for a support for the stage of production in the program of AVF dedicated to Minority co-productions. Animated feature films and short films for cinema and animated TV series intended for TV broadcast are eligible. The maximum support per project amounts to 300,000 €. There are two calls per year for minority co-production (February and September).

Other types of support include scholarships for professional training, support for distribution, support for promotion and festival release or support for research and publishing. The usual length of the evaluation process of projects at the AVF is 60 days from the date of the official deadline of a call.

A project produced in Slovakia can benefit from a 20% tax rebate on all accepted production expenses incurred in Slovakia. For detailed information on conditions for benefiting from the tax rebate, please contact the Slovak Film Commission or your Slovak co-production partner.
RTVS – RADIO AND TELEVISION SLOVAKIA

RTVS is a state-owned public broadcaster with national coverage, and a regular buyer and co-producer of animated content – produced or co-produced by Slovak production companies. In recent years, RTVS as a co-producer has notably supported the development and production of animated TV series for children.

SFI – SLOVAK FILM INSTITUTE

The Slovak Film Institute (SFI) is a public funded institution dedicated to archiving and promoting Slovak audiovisual works. SFI promotes Slovak films and film professionals on international markets such as European Film Market in Berlin and Marché du Film in Cannes, and many festivals and cinema related events all along the year, in Slovakia and abroad. SFI regularly releases promotional brochures mapping the current Slovak audiovisual production.

CEE ANIMATION

The Slovak Association of Animated Film Producers (APAF) is co-founder of CEE Animation, a supranational grouping of associations of animated film from various countries of Central and Eastern Europe. CEE Animation is the organizer of multiple activities with international scope, mainly the CEE Animation Forum, the continuation of the former Visegrad Animation Forum, and also the CEE Animation Workshop, a 3-module professional training for producers of animated content from CEE aimed at gaining advanced producer skills and development of projects. CEE Animation activities operate under various schemes of the Creative Europe MEDIA programme. CEE Animation is seated in Ljubljana, Slovenia, but several Slovak professionals are directly involved in the organization of activities, as members of board and the executive committee of CEE Animation.

CEE Animation Forum, organized each year in the beginning of May in Třeboň, Czech republic, is the ideal meeting point to discover new projects of animated films or TV series from the CEE region and find a co-production or servicing partner from Slovakia and other countries of CEE.
