Animation Storyboarding Competition 2006

Win Three Months FREE professional animation training at the Bristol School of Animation

The Competition

Bristol School of Animation in conjunction with Aardman Animations Ltd is pleased to announce its annual storyboarding competition for 2006. A storyboard visually conveys the plot and action of a scene, or shot, or whole film/commercial. We are looking for talented individuals to produce original and imaginative storyboards (no more than 20 frames) for a 60-second TV advertisement designed to raise public awareness of the dangers of global warming. It should aim to deliver a message that inspires individuals to take personal responsibility for the conservation of energy, highlighting the contribution that can be made by people at a domestic level. The competition judges will be looking for skills in the development and communication of a strong concept likely to influence the general public.

The Prize

The first prize of this competition is a free place to study either 2D or 3D animation on Bristol School of Animation's prestigious 'Three Month Animation Professional Training Course' (26th June – 8th September 2006). This fantastic prize also includes the payment of accommodation costs for the duration of the eleven-week period. There will also be runners-up prizes on offer.

The Three Month Animation Course offers would be animators the chance to gain or enhance their understanding of the core skills and techniques involved in the production of successful character animation. The course also includes training in life drawing and support from local professional animation studios, including Aardman Animations Ltd. For further details about the Three Month Animation Course go to www.uwe.ac.uk/amd or telephone +44 (0) 117 328 4810.
